

BIOGRAPHYLa Jolla, CA, USA

Dr. Dychter is a physician/scientist who has dedicated his career and personal mission to help advance the global development of novel therapeutics for the treatment of life-threatening diseases and social programs to enable positive and meaningful change within communities in both the United States and Mexico. Trained as a general medical practitioner at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, he has worked as a leader in different biopharmaceutical companies in clinical development, drug safety/risk management, and medical affairs. He is currently a Senior Medical Director at Pfizer. His involvement to create positive social change is reflected in activities such as past Chair of the binational International Community Foundation (ICF) and Olivewood Garden and Learning Center. In his role as chair of ICF, Dr. Dychter was involved with multiple health programs that have made impactful binational changes to disease management in areas such as diabetes (Project Dulce) and tuberculosis (Puentes Program), in addition to consultation in numerous other activities.